A vertical board for a Japanese word chain game (Shiritori). The board is divided into two main sections on the left, each with three empty boxes below it for writing. The top section features a teapot illustration, and the bottom section features a die illustration. To the right of these sections are six rows of boxes, each containing a different illustration and a set of empty boxes for writing. Dashed lines connect the teapot to the first three rows and the die to the last three rows.
